3. Identify the organization that is legally and financially responsible for the conduct of the activities supported by the award.

Oregon Health Network is a 501(c)(3) organization and is responsible for the FCC award.

4. Explain how the project is being coordinated throughout the state or region.

OHN has, and will continue to, actively engage stakeholders at the state and national level in order to elevate and maximize the collaborative efforts and knowledge of key players in health care, health care education, telemedicine/telehealth and policy as it relates to the ongoing health and sustainability of the RHCPPs. Recent ex parte filings from OHN to the FCC reflect both lessons learned to date and suggestions for policy reform in the future that will continue the momentum of building a national infrastructure to support health care delivery.

Upon successful completion of the June 30, 2012, RHCPP contract deadline, OHN will have almost fully leveraged its entire original RHCPP award to connect 226 health care provider sites to our network. In addition, we have been engaging non-RHCPP subsidized (or “standard”) health care providers and educator members to our network who need integrated connectivity with OHN members to deliver health care. This collaborative work is being met with success and appreciation of members and non-members alike. Our overall vision is in line with both the FCC and national health care policy through the CMS, and the coordination of these efforts will continue to fuel OHN’s efforts over the next three to five years.

OHN has also worked diligently with the FCC over the past few years to support an improved final rule and order of the Healthcare Broadband Services Plan (HBSP), which incorporates the lessons learned from the RHCPP. We’re hopeful that the recent HBSP RFC is successfully aligned to the new national, coordinated health care delivery space, and its inclusion of successful RHCPPs as networks that should be continued to be supported. Through OHN’s formally filed comments and ex parte conversations, OHN has identified additional health care providers that could benefit from additional or ongoing FCC HSBSP subsidy to install scalable and reliable broadband connections to the OHN statewide network community. Oregon’s Coordinated Care Organizations (similar to CMS’s Accountable Care Organizations) were introduced in the spring of 2012 and are specifically designed to integrate and coordinate care to the Medicaid and Medicare population. The development of these new CCOs makes the need for access to health care-grade connectivity even more fundamental in nationwide health care reform. OHN is poised and ready to meet this need through our current processes and systems. Today, we have over 600 additional health care providers identified as potentially eligible to receive HBSP funding to remain on, or to fund a new connection to OHN. Therefore, the final outcome of the HBSP critically impacts OHN’s ability to: 1) maximize the access, value, and use of our installed base and expanding membership; 2) reduce overbuilds/redundancy in the state; and 3) to support the new federally and state-mandated coordinated health care programs and policies.

5. Identify all health care facilities included in the network.

- a. Provide address (including county), zip code, Rural Urban Commuting Area (RUCA) code (including primary and secondary), six-digit census tract, and phone number for each health care facility participating in the network.

The information requested is provided in Attachment A.

- b. For each participating institution, indicate whether it is:

- i. Public or non-public;
- ii. Not-for-profit or for-profit;
- iii. An eligible health care provider or ineligible health-care provider with an explanation of why the health care facility is eligible under section 254 of the 1996 Act and the Commission's rules or a description of the type of ineligible health care provider entity.

The information requested is provided in Attachment A.

6. Network Narrative: In the first quarterly report following the completion of the competitive bidding process and the selection of vendors, the selected participant must submit an updated technical description of the communications network that it intends to implement, which takes into account the results its network design studies and negotiations with its vendors. This technical description should provide, where applicable:

- a. Brief description of the backbone network of the dedicated health care network, e.g., MPLS network, carrier-provided VPN, a SONET ring;

See "e" answer below

- b. Explanation of how health care provider sites will connect to (or access) the network, including the access technologies/services and transmission speeds;

See "e" answer below

- c. Explanation of how and where the network will connect to a national backbone such as NLR or Internet2;

See "e" answer below

- d. Number of miles of fiber construction, and whether the fiber is buried or aerial;

See "e" answer below

- e. Special systems or services for network management or maintenance (if applicable) and where such systems reside or are based.

Prior to OHN, health facilities had two basic choices for data network connectivity. They could lease dedicated lines between pairs of locations they wished to connect, or they could use the public Internet. Leased line solutions for data are similar to the earliest days of telephony before the advent of central office telephone switches, when conversations were possible only between two points on the opposite ends of a line. Once central office switches were introduced into telephony, customers only needed one line to the central office switch and could be connected there to any other customer without being required to arrange for lines to every point they wished to connect. OHN provides a similar solution for data networking in Oregon by requiring a high quality of service from each end-user location to a common data switching location that all participants can connect to directly. That single broadband connection then permits reliable broadband connectivity with every other end-user location connected to the switch with guaranteed high quality of service.

This high quality broadband data connectivity is quite different from that of the public Internet. Because the Internet is not a single network, but is the result of interconnecting a large number of independent networks throughout the world, no Internet Service Provider (ISP) can control the quality of service except on its own portion of the complex network. Consequently, all ISP contracts are “best efforts” contracts, with no guarantees of the amount or quality of data transport provided. Since all of the major Internet connection points on the west coast of the United States are in California or Washington, almost all Oregon Internet traffic is routed out of state and goes through up to 20 “routers” (the data networking equivalent of telephone switches) before going from one Oregon destination to another.

The lack of quality of service guarantees for Internet services has made the public Internet unsuitable for real-time medical applications, including telemedicine consults and real-time medical education applications. (Health facilities are using the Internet for some of these applications, but the consistent complaints about lack of quality have severely limited the amount of use for these purposes.) OHN makes it possible to obtain the economic advantages of Internet-like packet switched data transmission and the availability of connections to a very large number of sites, all while retaining the quality of service that was previously available only on dedicated leased lines.

The basic OHN technical plan is simple: OHN arranges for its participants to contract with telecommunications vendors to provide a guaranteed amount of guaranteed quality data capacity, in increments of 10 or 100 megabits (Mb) per second, up to 1 gigabit (Gb) per second from each end-user location to an Oregon data switching facility in Portland, the Northwest Access Exchange (NWAX), which permits connectivity with any other OHN end-user site. NWAX also permits each end-user site to connect with many other sites throughout Oregon that already exchange data traffic through NWAX. Thus, one connection from a rural clinic would be sufficient for it to reach any other medical facility in Oregon with high quality service. Even though different telecommunications vendors provide service to different facilities in different parts of the state, the guaranteed availability and quality of service on each link to the central switch will be sufficient to ensure that the end-to-end connection between any two end-points will permit reliable, real-time medical consultations and procedures.

The OHN Network Operations Center (NOC), operated under contract to OHN by EasyStreet Online Services of Beaverton, Oregon, is monitoring the network in real time to ensure that each telecommunications vendor meets the contractually committed quality of service guarantees on its portion of the network. OHN participants may contact the NOC staff to obtain assistance whenever they have technical network problems. The NOC staff will work with the telecom vendors involved to identify and isolate any problems and determine which telecom vendor is responsible. Without this NOC monitoring capability, individual sites with unsatisfactory service would not be able to prove to their telecom vendors that they were not getting the quality of service for which they were contracted.

OHN does not specify whether the data transport services are provided by MPLS, SONET, Ethernet, or other means. The end-user interfaces are specified as Internet Protocol (IP) over Ethernet with contractually guaranteed Quality of Service (QoS) with respect to service availability (99.99%), transit delay, packet loss, and jitter (variability in time of arrival of data packets). How the carriers transport the data packets and meet their QoS commitments is up to each carrier and may differ from carrier to carrier. Each participant site contracts for the amount of capacity required in increments of 10 or 100 Mbs, with the amount of capacity contractually committed (not an unenforceable "up to" amount). In other words, each OHN member contracts for the amount of data transport capacity required at each end-user site in the form of a virtual leased line with guaranteed quality of service. All data transport services for OHN are leased from telecommunications vendors. OHN is not constructing any fiber links, buried or aerial.

See Attached Statement of Financial Position.

ii. Identify the respective amounts and remaining time for such assistance.

This question is addressed in the answer above.

d. Explain how the selected participant's minimum 15 percent contribution is helping to achieve both the selected participant's identified goals and objectives and the overarching goals of the Pilot Program.

OHN works actively with its participants to learn their organizational goals and needs—currently and in the future—and to expand the sharing of coordinated health care delivery and telehealth best practices. This includes, but is not limited to, what telehealth programs our participants are providing to or receiving from one another and to convene introductions that spawn telehealth program expansion. Collectively, participants each have a different level of need, resources, staffing, and understanding of how OHN can help them serve the goals of the original RHCPP. Additionally, the education and communication support that OHN provides to its members is invaluable; this helps OHN members identify their goals and objectives and reflect back how OHN can then help them achieve those goals. This education component was not initially forecasted to be such a high need by Pilot Program authors, but through the consistent feedback by the pilot projects (including OHN) the FCC has learned more about the challenges associated with information tracking and sharing at the participant level. This knowledge and experience can then be incorporated into the FCC's universal service fund program reform efforts, and specifically the Broadband Services Plan.

For the remainder of the requested information, please see Attachment B.

9. Identify any technical or non-technical requirements or procedures necessary for ineligible entities to connect to the participant's network.

OHN successfully engaged five (5) member organizations (either systems or individual facilities) to join the network without the use of FCC RHCPP funding. These five new members joined OHN to assist their efforts in the new coordinated health care delivery space, improve the performance of existing network infrastructure, and to reduce the costs associated with direct point-to-point connections. For reporting purposes, these member sites are either classified as "ineligible" under RHCPP guidelines or they joined OHN after June 30, 2012 and therefore did not have time to engage in the lengthy RHCPP RFP process. OHN continues to promote the network with additional healthcare providers without the benefit of a subsidy.

All providers who are critical to the delivery of care should be on the OHN. However, each year OHN targets the addition of new provider types on a regional basis. These providers and regions are selected based upon the value they add to the installed base, and their ability or willingness to embrace health IT as a means to effectively and efficiently provide the next generation of health care delivery. In OHN's current fiscal year, we have focused our member outreach efforts upon health care clinic systems, the few remaining hospitals in Oregon, and radiology clinics/labs within the Portland Metro and Central Oregon tri-county areas. Both regions have a large CCO effort in play. This is a difficult undertaking, but one to which OHN is committed. With only 7.6 full-time employees, OHN's intent is to identify a streamlined and scalable outreach model for new provider industries like these and ensure that these early adopter providers would agree to commit to helping OHN develop a winning model, value proposition, and annual OHN Membership Fee structure.

In regards to technical requirements to join the network, OHN has partnered with EasyStreet Online Services as our outsourced Network Operations Center (NOC) to install a new point-of-presence (PoP) as an additional connection solution for those new potential health care provider members whose existing or preferred telecommunications providers choose not peer at NWAX. This solution has proven to be both valuable and affordable to future members. This solution streamlines the path to full adoption and use of OHN to improve health care delivery and coordination, and benefits a broader set of health care providers. OHN will continue to identify additional network solutions such as this new PoP solution to reduce barriers to membership.

8. Provide an update on the project management plan, detailing:

a. The project's current leadership and management structure and any changes to the management structure since the last data report;

There have been no changes to the management or board of directors' structure in the current quarter.

b. In the first quarterly report, the selected applicant should provide a detailed project plan and schedule. The schedule must provide a list of key project deliverables or tasks, and their anticipated completion dates. Among the deliverables, participants must indicate the dates when each health care provider site is expected to be connected to the network and operational. Subsequent quarterly reports should identify which project deliverables, scheduled for the previous quarter, were met, and which were not met. In the event a project deliverable is not achieved, or the work and deliverables deviate from the work plan, the selected participant must provide an explanation.

In follow up to last quarter's report, and in addition to the priority of successfully implementing the FCC RHCPP, OHN has clarified and focused upon four sustainability requirement areas of statewide health care networks like OHN (membership, financial, value and use, and network):

1. FCC RHCPP Program Management> Deployment, Fund Raising and Compliance

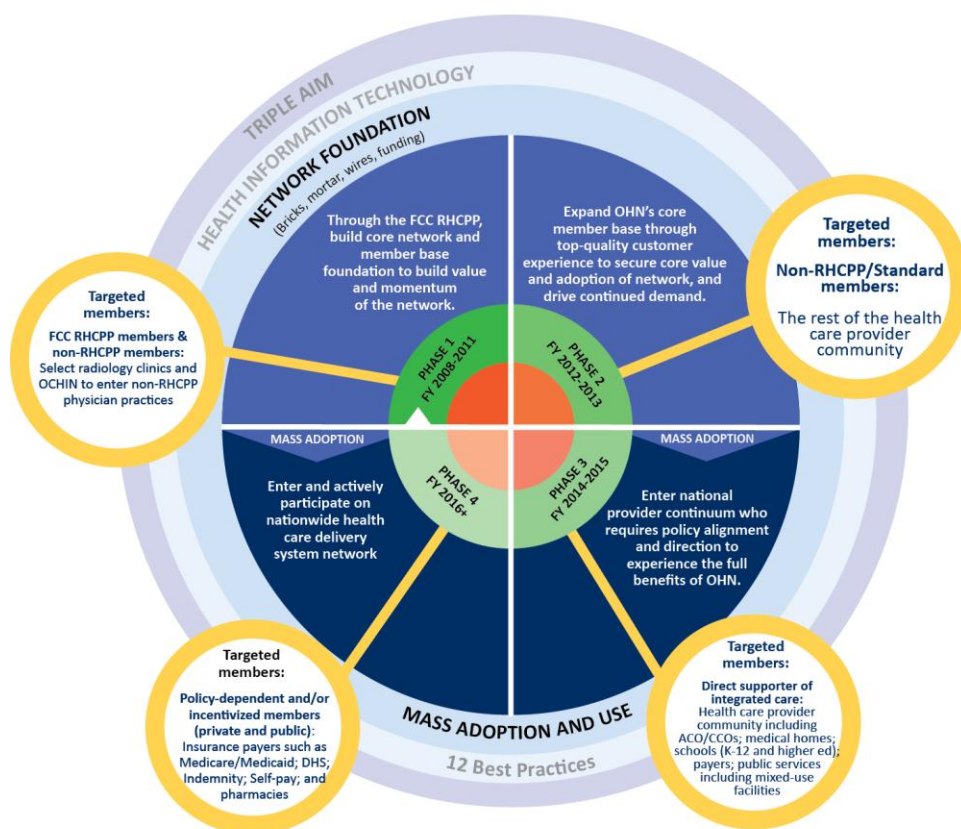

- GOAL of 200 SITES: OHN is happy to report that we have exceeded our original sustainability plan goal of 200 sites with a total of 226 locations being funded (or in funding process) by the RHCPP to connect to OHN. These sites best leverage and initiate strong "anchor tenant" communities" (hospitals, clinics, community colleges, radiology labs, etc.) The ability to now do so has a great deal to do with the FCC officially extending the 6/30/2011 deadline and our success in reducing attrition of those 226 sites.

Of these:

- Letters of Agreement: 336 (See Attachment C)
- Funding Commitment Letters Issued: 226 Sites, 22 FCLs (including 8 FCL consolidations)
- Actively being monitored by the OHN Network Operations Center: 102

See Attachment D

2. MEMBERSHIP: As addressed below, OHN has been very successfully in maximizing the use of FCC RHCPP funds to exceed our RHCPP sustainability site count goal and to have membership in every county in Oregon that has a health care provider but one. This includes 14 very rural Department of Corrections Facilities and 31 Oregon Youth Authority facilities that required an OHN connection to the State Data Center. This is unprecedented in that the State Data Center has never connected to an outside network. And more importantly, this solves the technical problem and means by which private and public health care coordination can occur.
3. FINANCIAL: OHN successfully raised its required RHCPP matching funds to cover the remaining sites interested in benefitting from the 15% of their installation costs to connect to OHN. Additionally, OHN benefitted from an operational grant through the Department of Human Resources to help fund its initial three years of operational costs. Additionally, OHN's business model is based upon our ability to cover 100% of our operational costs through membership fees and hosted services/solutions revenue to help successfully transition the organization from a RHCPP project deployment organization (phase 1) on to a more mature, sustainable business (phase 2). This strategy and transition path is best described below:

4. VALUE & USE

- TELEHEALTH: OHN continues to learn and track which of our members are providing and receiving telehealth services and to convene the discussions and expertise required to do so across the membership base. Primary known telehealth uses of OHN include, but are not limited to: teleradiology, stroke, and NICU/PICU/PEDs.

- HEALTH IT BEST PRACTICES: Through OHN's 12 Health IT Best Practices model and statewide on-site outreach, OHN staff continue to earn and cultivate the trust of our members and the statewide health/HIT community as we have come to better understand the needs of our members and what resources or information stand in the way of their full use, adoption, and benefit of their connection. We have incorporated pre-turn-up testing protocols to assist OHN participants who already have some form of telemedicine/telehealth or outreach program in place, to run "before and after" tests on their new connection. This is a critical first step in educating and assisting internal participant site staff and departments in experiencing what OHN can do for their day-to-day clinical and core operational environments. These sorts of tests are also critical for OHN to acquire and disseminate across the OHN community to build strong case studies for those who are struggling with full implementation and use of their new connection. OHN's model has been published by Government Technology magazine and articles syndicated on Government Health IT's blog.
 - STATE OF OREGON's HIT INITIATIVES: After three years of advocacy and outreach, OHN is pleased to report that OHN has been named and incorporated into the State of Oregon's Health Information Technology (HIT) strategic plan. This is the first of such plan for the state of Oregon. Initiatives referenced in the plan include, but are not limited to: the roll out of the state's first health information exchange (HIE), the meaningful use of electronic health records with the help of the regional extension center, the state's first health insurance exchange (HIX), and the new coordinated care organizations (CCOs). OHN's statewide infrastructure is the foundation and means by which all of these federally and state-mandated health IT and reform efforts can occur in the aggressive timelines designated.
5. NETWORK: OHN's multi-vendor leased services network architecture model has proven itself viable and successful. All vendors are actively living up to OHN's health care-grade broadband service level agreements, and OHN has been able to reach all corners of the state. The Network Operations Center (NOC) is proving its value daily; monitoring 102 participant sites. The NOC provides real-time monitoring and issue identification and resolution, which benefits both the telecom providers and the health care provider members. As more sites get installed, the value of the NOC will increase. Additionally, all OHN members are experiencing best practice bandwidth spike averages.

9. Project Model Executive Summary

- After the conclusion of the Rural Health Care Pilot Program (RHCPP), OHN participants will continue to pay annual participation fees to support OHN operations, including common network elements not included in telecommunications vendor charges.
- OHN will continue to educate and bring on non-RHCPP health care providers onto the network, building our base and supporting integrated health care delivery models.
- RHCPP-OHN participants sign membership agreements that include a statement of their intention to continue to participate after the RHCPP is concluded.
- Post-RHCPP, OHN participants will continue to be customers of telecommunications vendors for transport links from their sites to the OHN interconnection location. Urban participants will pay their full costs, and eligible rural participants will pay the costs not subsidized by the Primary Universal Service Fund (USF) rural health care program, unless the FCC publishes the Broadband Plan with policy support of our consortium network design.
- Awaiting/in lieu of the potential funding opportunities supplied through the new FCC HBSP, OHN may centralize administrative support for eligible rural sites to participate in the Primary Rural Health Care Program, again depending on what policy changes are brought forth between now, and 2014. New competitive procurements will determine whether more cost-effective solutions than those provided by renewal options are available.
- OHN looks with anticipation to the proposed new Broadband Services Plan for additional support and continuance of the mission and work to date.

Additionally, OHN has is pleased to continue to build value and usage of the network through our new Telehealth Video Conferencing/Bridging solution through OneVision and Oregon State University. Three (3) contracted OHN hospitals have implemented and are using the OHN Telehealth Video Conferencing Solution on the OHN, and many more participants have expressed interest in using video to support the improved delivery/coordination of care. Therefore, with OHN's large participant base, continued high bandwidth utilization, and telehealth/video conferencing use solutions in play, OHN has actively transitioned from RHCPP deployment to being a network that has begun to demonstrate use of the network platform as a means to serve the Triple Aim: improve patient outcomes/experience, improve population health, and reduce costs.

10. Provide detail on how the supported network has advanced telemedicine benefits:

- Explain how the supported network has achieved the goals and objectives outlined in selected participant's Pilot Program application;
See below
- Explain how the supported network has brought the benefits of innovative telehealth and, in particular, telemedicine services to those areas of the country where the need for those benefits is most acute;
See below
- Explain how the supported network has allowed patients access to critically needed medical specialists in a variety of practices without leaving their homes or communities;
See below

- d. Explain how the supported network has allowed health care providers access to government research institutions, and/or academic, public, and private health care institutions that are repositories of medical expertise and information;
See below
- e. Explain how the supported network has allowed health care professional to monitor critically ill patients at multiple locations around the clock, provide access to advanced applications in continuing education and research, and/or enhanced the health care community's ability to provide a rapid and coordinated response in the event of a national crisis.

Please refer to Attachment B

11. Provide detail on how the supported network has complied with HHS health IT initiatives:

- a. Explain how the supported network has used health IT systems and products that meet interoperability standards recognized by the HHS Secretary;

OHN's vision, network, and business model has always been designed to connect with other regional public agency and private organization networks to fulfill the vision of developing not only a statewide, but a nationwide, integrated health care delivery system. OHN worked with the California Telehealth Network with this same "end" in mind. While efforts and strategies exist to do so, obstacles still exist to make that investment, primarily the need to have a strong need to support the costs that such a solution would require. Step one has been for both of our networks to successfully fulfill our RHCPP sustainability plan requirements and to make full and the best use of our awarded subsidy dollars. Additionally, until inter-state physician licensing, credentialing, and privileging, as well as reimbursement policies, are addressed, connecting now would be premature.

Within and throughout Oregon, OHN has connected 14 rural Department of Correction facilities and 31 Oregon Youth Authority facilities to OHN through the RHCPP. Doing so required OHN having a connection to the State Data Center. Prior to OHN, the State Data Center had never connected to any other outside network like this, making it unprecedented. What this means is that through OHN and the State Data Center, true integrated health care delivery can occur across the public and private communities. OHN's network is the best and only means to connect multiple public/private providers together to improve the coordination of care. In addition, OHN has convened these individual institutions with the health care provider organizations to marry "patient" and "provider" given the unique and specific issues that are inherent to an incarcerated population. This has become a watershed point in time for all involved and one that OHN will look to report on in further detail over time.

- b. Explain how the supported network has used health IT products certified by the Certification Commission for Health care Information Technology;

With over 226 RHCPP provider sites (plus five non-RHCPP provider sites) actively connected and/or engaged with OHN, and through OHN's outreach and best practice sharing efforts, OHN has cultivated a growing and greater understanding of the intended uses of the network both in the short-, mid-, and long-term. There are a number of participants who have a sophisticated understanding and strategy as to what health IT applications and new clinical/telehealth service lines they will utilize as a result of the OHN. Others, however, are still unclear, and OHN is working to assist these participants by identifying telehealth resources and information that allows them to develop sound strategies and plans to fully use the network. Examples of a health IT product that can be used on the OHN are:

- Telemedicine and HIT Applications
 - Video conference technology for training or consultations. Most common uses are:
 - Continuing medical education (CME)
 - Diagnosis (stroke, radiology; NICU/PICU, mental health, routine clinical consultations)
 - Emergency consultation and triage
 - Follow-up
 - Administrative
 - Radiology/Pacs/Image Transfer
 - Electronic Health Records

The use of video conferencing allows for operational efficiency, improved file transfer times, the ability to bring in services from other partners who were previously unavailable due to bandwidth constraints, faster and more reliable connectivity to data center/server locations for improved processing times, and increased and/or improved upon statewide referral patterns amongst health care providers.

c. Explain how the supported network has supported the Nationwide Health Information Network (NHIN) architecture by coordinating activities with organizations performing NHIN trial implementations;

In these critical first four years of getting participants through the RHCPP process and on the network, no direct/active effort has yet been made to address the NHIN architecture. Having said that, preliminary research and discussions have taken place both internally within OHN and with the state as the state clarifies and implements its HIE solution, which currently leverages the NHIN architecture.

d. Explain how the supported network has used resources available at HHS's Agency for Health care Research and Quality (AHRQ) National Resource Center for Health Information Technology

OHN has been working with the Governor of Oregon's Health Information Technology Oversight Council (HITOC) since its inception to best leverage OHN's statewide health care network infrastructure into the state's health information exchange (HIE) solution and overarching HIT plan. Additionally, OHN has been working with Oregon's only Regional Extension Center, O-HITEC, to support their efforts to encourage the expansion, deployment, and meaningful use of electronic health records across the state. Both the state and OCHIN/O-HITEC have seats on the OHN Board.

e. Explain how the selected participant has educated themselves concerning the Pandemic and All Hazards Preparedness Act and coordinated with the HHS Assistant Secretary for Public Response as a resource for telehealth inventory and for the implementation of other preparedness and response initiatives.

OHN was designed to be part of, and to support, the emergency and disaster response efforts and systems of the state. The organization's ability to make headway is largely a factor of timing. In our first four years of operation, OHN's primary purpose and obligation was to build a scalable, reliable, and sustainable network, and to look forward and build with the "end" in mind; to connect our network to all the other state and national public and systems that need to coordinate with each other. OHN has been actively reaching out to the state of Oregon's Health Security - Preparedness and Response Program leadership to educate them on how OHN and its new Telehealth Video Conferencing solution can, and should, be used to better support communication and statewide coordination in the event of an emergency. Currently, the state has been unsuccessful in identifying a video conferencing solution that could support public/private video conferencing. OHN's solution does. In addition to, and related to, these discussions, OHN is working with the Oregon Department of Administration, through the Oregon Broadband Advisory Council (OBAC), to assist the currently siloed state agencies in understanding the network topology across the state. With this, OHN is assisting in understanding these agencies' future needs and demands, including how to create a better roadmap as to how communication and program integration/coordination can occur with a more seamless statewide network infrastructure.

f. Explain how the supported network has used resources available through HHS's Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Public Health Information Network (PHIN) to facilitate interoperability with public health and emergency organizations.

In addition to OHN's work on Emergency and Disaster Response, OHN has informed the Oregon Department of Administrative Services (DAS) on OHN's Microsoft™ SharePoint Portal system that could actively push/pull public safety alerts/information across our network to the state. These discussions are preliminary but are actively underway. DAS also approached OHN to develop an ArcGIS map that shows the entire OHN network membership base, their use of telehealth, broadband capacity, and telecom provider information to assist in all strategic infrastructure and resource development initiatives.

12. Explain how the selected participants coordinated in the use of their health care networks with the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and, in particular, with its Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) in instances of national, regional, or local public health emergencies (e.g., pandemics, bioterrorism). In such instances, where feasible, explain how selected participants provided access to their supported networks to HHS, including CDC, and other public health officials.

There are three areas that OHN has focused on to meet these core goals of the RHCPP:

1. Governance and membership composition restructure that has included the addition of a Department of Health Services (newly named Oregon Health Authority) board seat; this will be critical in better communicating and aligning OHN's goals and objectives to those of the state.
2. Continued development of our Microsoft™ SharePoint portal system for board, committee, staff, site, and vendors; OHN has a technological communication framework that could easily be used with HHS and CDC, etc., to post and distribute national alerts through the OHN community statewide through our newly developed OHN Portal to quickly contact all participating sites in case of a national, regional, or local public health emergency.

3. Working with state and local governments to be part of the conversation of an integrated system. OHN is actively engaged in this effort and is looking forward to being a part of these conversations and strategy setting. Given the serious situation Oregon faces with a $3.8B deficit, all state agencies are being tasked to do more with less and are interested in solutions. We believe that with OHN we can do that and more—we can do even better than before.

Thank you.
